

The EA have got their act together - have YOU?

The Environment Agency have specially trained agents now visiting ELV, ATF and MRS sites across the country. They are visiting sites checking that you can demonstrate how to depollute a car following the correct procedures. They will also be doing spot checks on your permits and checking that all health and safety procedures are in place and are being followed.

QSP are offering you or a member of your staff to become competent in a Brand New WAMITAB unit:

Preparing for EA inspection (OCS65)

This Unit has just been released by WAMITAB as of 1st April 2016, you could be one of the FIRST to complete this and be one step ahead. On completion of this unit, you will gain a recognised WAMITAB Unit Certificate.

QSP will send one of our qualified Assessors onto your site to go through what the EA would expect to see. The Assessor would also do a mini audit on your site to ensure there are no short falls in any procedures and present you their findings.

Have you heard about the Environment Agency's clampdown on ATFs ELV & MRS sites which are planned for the New Year?

The Environment Agency's Head of ELV's, Tania Tucker made comment that ATF's, ELV's and MRS's would need to demonstrate that they are operating to their licence conditions and complying with the law. The audit will assess effectiveness of your depollution process and the storage and handling of the associated fluids and waste materials. It will also include areas such as technical competence, record keeping, compliance with hazardous waste regulations and F Gas compliance.

"ELVs are the biggest sector of metals recycling" said the head of the EA's ELV sector. "We are working to get all EA officers to the same standard", she said.

They feel this clampdown will show a great deal of depollution that should have been carried out, but hasn't. What you need to appreciate is that it isn't hard for the EA to analyse your data. They know how many cars you handle and they know on average, how much waste this will produce. They also have the waste notes to check that the two add up.
